

Sonoma's Harmon Guest House, an environmentally friendly hotel by Piazza Hospitality in Healdsburg, which opened in 2018 and features 39 guest rooms—including six Founder's Suites that feel like you have your own private wing—plus a rooftop terrace with fire pit and bar, a pool, and modern architecture and design by San Francisco-based David Baker Architects. Each guest room features all-glass showers, window nooks for working or dining, a selection of commissioned artwork from emerging California artists, custom Fireclay tiles made in California from recycled materials, cast concrete vanities and tubs by Sonoma Stoneworks, and a private balcony or patio. The palette features warm neutrals—white oak floors, golden yellows, blacks and navy—to make airy rooms that are sophisticated and comfortable. David Baker Architects also designed most of the furniture, including the casework, beds, side tables and window seats. The Rooftop at Harmon Guest House, a sophisticated lounge on the upper level of the hotel, is Healdsburg's only publicly accessible rooftop bar, and it's the perfect perch from which to watch the sunset. Guest rooms from $249, 227 Healdsburg Ave., Healdsburg, 707.431.8220, harmonguesthouse.com
